

Book of Doodles

INTRO

This book is silly.

It really is - it's not even a proper art-book or a portfolio, it's just a bunch of doodles, done mostly at work. But they're good. (Actually, it starts a little weak, and then gets a lot better after the first 6 or so pix - but they're good too.)

The Surrealists of the 30s loved random doodles as they believed they were portraits of the unconscious mind, the hands moving without the "artist" thinking at all, thus revealing our (inner) dream worlds or desires. How our minds work without any form of censorship. If that is true (and why not?), then my doodles reveal ... umm... really silly and really strange things. I'd like to say there's a theme, but the theme seems to be "just really weird shit".

And I love that.

For those who want to know, I do not use any special pens, just some cheapies, I don't use "good" art paper just a cheap sketchbook (before that I just used whatever paper I could find in the office), and no, I haven't had any art lessons since high school (except for one year of graphic design).

I just like to draw. Well, doodle.

doodles they say reveal things about us, about our inner thoughts.
So here's one for the analysts:] vagina

Sometimes these doodles become actual works of art (again, self-taught), such as the example on the following page. It just started with me drawing an EdwaRd Scissorhands guy with hammer and sickle hands. Edward Communismhands! With the face and rage of Stalin! Versus.... umm... smurfs! Yea! Screw you Smurfs! Bahahahahaha!!! Wait a minute - this idea's awesome! It's just odd enough to paint... Add this n' that and tadaa! The doodle has "matured" into an artwork!

Round of applause - thank you.

And then we move on, for the great thing about doodles is that they're NOT amazing works of art - they need not be. But the ones in here don't suck.

I hope you enjoy them.

Phil Anselmo is the vocalist of metal band Pantera.
"Walk" is a song by Pantera.

"Pmerde!" - literally "Pshit!", as in the word shit, with a "p" in front of it - is the first line of Alfred Jarry's absurdist play "Ubu Roi". Jarry was a sort of pre-cursor to the Surrealists.

"Charlie don't surf!" is a line from Coppola's "Apocalypse Now".

"R666CK!" is a six part Ep series by my band Fat Little Bastard.

"Yo! Watch the beat!" is a line from "I'm the Man" by Anthrax.

"I saw Gener..." is a song by Ween.

"Only one of us..." is a line from "Only One" by Slipknot.
"I will tear ..." is a line from the movie "Hellraiser".

Well sir.
If I could sir, at any time, have quick, meaningless
but utterly satisfying grape-sex with a mature dingo,
well sir,
I would, I WOULD,
but only on a step-ladder or perhaps a ladder... Let this be an introduction to me - for you.
Good day
Sir!
